THE HENDRYSBURG AFFAIR.

We gave in our columns, a few mornings since, a brief account of an attempted murder, and subsequent suicide of the would-be murderer, at Hendrysburg, Belmont county, one evening last week. We gather the following additional particulars of the horrible affair from the Belmont Chronicle of yesterday:

On Tuesday evening last about four o'clock a murderous affray took place at the above village. The murderer and suicide was formerly a saloon keeper by the name of Henry Yans, well known to many of our readers as the murderer of Ferrell, and sent to the Penitentiary from this county a little more than a year ago. His time had expired about six weeks since and he had returned. The shooting took place in Yans' house, and Moses Kline, a traveling salesman, was the victim. During Yans' absence from home, his wife, who raised and manufactured wines, had disposed of a quantity of Kline at less than value, as Yans thought, and this, together with some difficulty about borrowed money caused Yans to call Kline into his house as he was passing by, to demand an explanation. During the altercation which followed, Yans drew a pistol and shot Kline, the ball entering his breast above the heart and passing out beneath his shoulder blade. The wound is by some considered fatal, by others not. At the time of writing he is not suffering much.

Immediately after shooting Kline, Yans went to a mirror, placed the pistol against the right temple a little above and to the right of the eye, and fired, the ball passing through his brain.

THE INSANITY

From the previous acts of the suicide-there is but little doubt of his insanity.

He had frequently spoken of killing himself, and it required strong persuasion on the part of his wife to prevent the deed.

She supposed that he intended to use laudum for his purposes, she had found some in the house. To satisfy him she gave up the pistol to him some time ago, but hid the cartridges. Without her knowledge he had obtained them and loaded the pistol, and on the morning of the same day he told her that was the last time he should trouble her about his dress, and that he didn't wish any of his clothing removed, but his shoes. She asked him what he meant, but received an evasive answer. Since coming home he had been frequently reading the Bible, and especially those passages relating to the punishment of certain crimes. She endeavored to explain them, and made him promise not to take his own life; but in a fit of passion he committed the deed.

Yans was perhaps fifty years old, and naturally of a passionate disposition.
